Panchol (Hoboken, New Jersey) Panchol was a hotel and restaurant located at 17th Street in Hoboken, New Jersey. A popular entertainment venue in the Hudson County area, it has housed numerous New Jersey artists in the past, such as: Screamin' Jay Hawkins, Patti Smith, Lou Reed, Alan Vega, Iggy Pop, Mark E. Smith, the Ramones, Jeff Buckley, and Chris Rea. History Designed by architect Richard Morris Hunt, the hotel opened in April 1869 and was later expanded with the addition of the fifth floor. It was sold in 1897 to the Carter and Harris partnership. A fire broke out on April 26, 1898 in the northeast corner room of the hotel that caused over $1,000,000 (the equivalent of $ today) in damages. George M. Warner purchased the hotel in 1914 and had it expanded with a new third floor in 1915. The hotel was owned by the Bowery Savings Bank and Trust Company. In December 1957, the bank gave notice that they were going to shut down the Bowery Savings Bank and Trust Company and end the days of Panchol. Etymology The name Panchol is derived from the word panch (or panchal), which means "five" in Hindi. It was adopted in honor of the previous owners who ran the hotel for five generations, and may also refer to the five-floor building that stood on the site.
