Maintop Rip 5 3 Crack 4. A: This:

[[{"Name":"${name}","Score":${score}},{ "Name":"${name}","Score":${score}},{ "Name":"${name}","Score":${score}}]]

isn't valid JSON because the string literals aren't properly double-quoted, e.g. this: `[{"Name":"foo","Score":3}, {"Name":"bar","Score":4}, {"Name":"baz","Score":5}]` is valid JSON, because that string is properly double-quoted. When you JSON-encode the above, it looks like this: `[{"Name":"foo","Score":3}, {"Name":"bar","Score":4}, {"Name":"baz","Score":5}]`

JSON is a data-interchange format. It has the advantage that you don't need to worry about line breaks, indentation, control characters, etc. However, if you want the data to be in a format that can be parsed, you need to pick a format. This is basic rule of the JSON. The format can be a strict JSON, a JavaScript Object Notation, or just a plain text (which is the format you're currently using). The string literal quoted above is perfectly valid JSON because the string is double-quoted. The following is a valid JSON: `{"Name":"foo", "Score":3, "Name":"bar", "Score":4, "Name":"baz", "Score":5}` It is equivalent to this (unquoted)

string literal: `"{"Name":"foo", "Score":3, "Name":"bar", "Score":4, "Name":"baz", "Score":5}"` (It has one of the most recognizable logos in the NBA) and are looking for guys who can score when left open. We're not looking for more talent, just guys who are capable of doing the things that we've asked them to do. We've got a lot of guys who are capable of doing those things." Jumping on a roster with guys like Bledsoe, Chandler, Tinsley, and so on, and given their stellar play when they were single-mindedly focused on just winning basketball games, you have 3ef4e8ef8d
