I will try to keep my post as clear as possible. I have been investigating a lot of examples on how to send multiple parameters when I call a webservice. Some examples I have worked on have sent multiple parameters through e-mail, or similar structures. In a webservice, when I have a Get command, the format is set to accept one parameter (URI). (A format similar to the GetParameters() method in a asp.net mvc controller). In this case, my XMLHttpRequest() call looks like this: `var xhr = new XMLHttpRequest(); xhr.open("GET", service`

PS Explorer allows users to search the commandlets inside a SharePoint 2010 installation for specific commands. After creating a query (e.g. `-site:""` and `cmdlet:Get-SPWeb`) you can click Search and the results will be filtered. You can also filter the results by the File Type (e.g. All Commands, Exe Commandlets, Scripts etc.) and the execution order. After you have filtered the results, you can view the Commandlet's properties (e.g. Parameters, Aliases, Description etc.) and execute it (e.g. `-commandlet:Get-SPWeb`), (I) which are interconnected to provide a data bus, a control bus and a power bus. The NMOS/PMOS transistors are connected between the power bus and a ground bus so that charge is transferred between the power bus and the ground bus in the first mode, and so that data signals are transferred on the data bus in the second mode. The present invention also provides a method of operating an amplifier. The method includes providing a transistor, the transistor connected between a power bus and a ground bus to provide a pair of output terminals. The method includes providing a control signal input to control a current flow between the power bus and the ground bus through the transistor. The method includes providing a reference voltage to a first input terminal of a differential amplifier so that a signal is applied to the reference voltage through the transistor. The method includes providing a second input terminal of the differential amplifier so that a reference input signal is applied to the second input terminal. An advantage of the present invention is that the amplifier is implemented in an integrated circuit, and the reference voltage is stored in a capacitor connected to the second terminal of the differential amplifier. Therefore, the reference voltage is relatively stable. A second advantage of the present invention is that the amplifier is constructed in a small size. Furthermore, the amplifier is relatively inexpensive to manufacture.

Q: How can I group a DataGridView to allow only one column to be selected at a time I am working on some controls for a Windows Form Application. I am having some problems with DataGridViews. I want to be able to have a grid that looks like Currently I have a DataGridView with a DataSource. The datasource looks like: DataTable customerTable = new DataTable("customerTable"); customerTable.Columns.Add("Customer ID");
