Raster Edit Features Effects Photoshop allows you to add various effects to images. Here are a few of the most useful: Adobe Photoshop Effects - gives a variety of effects to your images. Some of the effects that it provides include shadows, bevels, color contrasts, saturates, alters and more. Adobe Photoshop Effects are located under Filters > Filters > Adjustment Layers. Nondestructive Editing (NDE) - can be used to edit images without losing any of the original image data. It is also useful in combination with the Clone Stamp. Enlarger - creates a larger copy of an area of an image. Blur - can be used to blur areas of an image. Filter Gallery - gives many different filters to apply to an image. Adobe Photoshop Effects (click to enlarge) Filters Photoshop has many filters, or effects. Some are nondestructive, or can be used without affecting the image, while others can only be used with layers. If you haven't yet, this article will teach you how to use filters. The filters come under the Filters section of the Edit menu. Blur Blurs add a soft blur to an image. Blurs can be made from an area, from a disk, or from the entire image. This effect is nondestructive, and you can edit it without affecting the original image. It is a useful effect to apply if you need to create a depth of field for a portrait. Glow Effect Applies a glow to an image. You can apply a glow to an area or to the entire image, or you can apply different colors to the glow. Blending Modes Also known as 'Composite Modes', Photoshop allows you to blend images together using blending modes, which are the combinations of colors that result from the process of combining two images. Some of the most common blending modes include: Linear - results in a light gray color, which is the average of the colors of both images. Paint - results in a color that is the sum of the colors of both images. Multiply - results in a color that is the sum of the colors multiplied by each other. Darken - results in a color that is the product of the colors of both images. Lighten - results in a

Q: PHP OOP Self explaining cicel I'm trying to create a class that recieves an array as a parameter and then loop trough that array and submits each value as an object property. Why won't this work? Why do I need a self explaining method that loops trough each object and loops trough each array and inserts the data. Code: class Date_model { public $dates; function __construct() { $this->dates = array(); } function date_get($index) { for($i = 0; $i < count($this->dates); $i++) { $date = new Date($this->dates[$i]); if ($this->dates[$i] != $date) { $this->dates[$i] = $date; } } return $this->dates; } } $omedate = "01.11.2013"; $m_df = new Date_model($omedate); print_r($m_df->date_get(0)); A: Why don't you just do public $dates; function __construct() { for ($i = 0; $i < count($dates); $i++) { $date = new Date($this->dates[$i]); $this->dates[$i] = $date; } } and get rid of the for loop in the getter function? Q: jQuery trigger doesn't work for multiple divs I am trying to trigger an alert() every 4 seconds. I have multiple.accordions, but for some reason only the first one shows the alert
